Risk Takers Vs. Rule Followers – What's the Differences?

Have you ever wondered “what are the differences between a worker who has risky behaviors and one who follows procedures to the letter?” It has almost nothing to do with how much they care about getting home safe because every worker wants to go home in one piece. What separates them are...

OSHA's Updated Warehouse NEP

The National Emphasis Program on Warehousing and Distribution Center Operations has been extended from three years to five years, providing greater continuity in OSHA's enforcement efforts. The renewed program also provides clearer instruction on OSHA's authority to expand inspections when fatalities, catastrophes, complaints, or referrals involve establishments within the covered industries.

Employers can use this opportunity to review their workplace safety and health programs, address potential hazards, and strengthen measures that help protect workers.

For more information, read the NEP and visit OSHA's Warehousing webpage for resources to keep workers safe. (OSHA QuickTakes 08/06/2026)
