

"Working Safe, Preventing Injuries, & Protecting Profits"

OSHA Provides Guidance to Protect Workers in Various Industries during COVID-19

OSHA provides guidance and resources for employers and workers on the control and prevention of COVID-19. Some sections of this guidance apply to all workers and employers, while other sections focus on those at lower risk of exposure and those with increased risk of exposure, including workers involved in:

- Manufacturing
- Construction
- Healthcare & Dentistry
- Emergency response and public safety
- Post-mortem care
- Meat and poultry processing
- Laboratories
- Airline operations
- Retail operations
- Border protection and transportation security
- Correctional facility operations
- Solid waste and wastewater management
- Environmental (i.e., janitorial) services
- In-home repair services
- Business travelers

More information and the poste is available on the OSHA website at <https://www.osha.gov/SLTC/covid-19/controlprevention.html>.